"It was one beautiful afternoon in Boston, a month ago," began Mr. Price-and you can almost see the children clustering around his knee, and near them cry "Tell us a story please"-

They say that Lillian Russell will play her last week at the Casino in "The Princess Nicotine," beginning Jan. 23, and that on Feb. 5 this handsome production will go to the Harlem Opera-House. It will then have had a long run at the Casino—not perhaps so long a run as it deserved. But how can a really meritorious comicopera hope to compete with the "Pantandsome" and the "Mark". opera hope to compete with the jandrums' and the '1492's?"

"I am putting the finishing touches to The Heart of Maryland," said David Belanco yesterday, "but Mrs. Certer will not no out at all this season. Times are too hard. It appears that Henry Irving and Miss Elien Terry visited the Crystal Maze last week, at special invitation. Miss Terry was much pleased, and noticing the crowd of Irvings around her, she said to the eminent actor: "Do you know, I have never seen so many good actors at one time in my life." The Twelfth Night Club is to give a reception next Saturday night, and the occasion will surely be a pleasant one. Scores of nice people are invited.

Ladies sat on the floor of the Metropolitan Opera-House Saturday afternoon like New York Yum-Yums. They were there to hear Calve in "Carmen," which opera is to this season what "Faust" was to the last. The big theatre was crowded, and no less than 1,900 admission tickets were sold. The performance was a good one, marred by Jean Lassalle, who sang the "Toreador" song fearfully off the key. It set one's teeth on edge to hear him. Calve herself was not as melodious as usual, but she is the lioness just now, and the herd will flock to hear her.

"It seems like being at home again, playing in New York," said Lew Dockstader, the minstrel, yesterday. "Do I enjoy it? Well, you bet. Of course, I hope to be established in New York again some day, but I don't say that I see my plan before me, for I don't. We have fared very well this season. We had nearly four weeks in Chicago during the Fair, and that helped us a good deal. In the towns around Chicago business was dreadful. People simply mortgaged their furniture to go to the Fair. It has hurt the country a good deal, as far as we are concerned."
